

The programmes were exciting, the learning sustainable

Fathom Learning supported a wide range of our leaders and managers. During times immense change in the public sector we understood the need to adapt our front line services.

A concise range of bespoke learning and development programmes have equipped managers with new skills and knowledge. Concurrently those programmes also helped to develop our organisational vision.

Fathom worked in partnership with our project lead officers, together they produced a joint solution delivered in a manner that clearly speaks our language. Those programmes were designed and delivered with appropriate challenge and insight. They matched our methods of working and development needs uniquely.

For all our learning and development people, the programmes proved exciting to be part of. They are ensuring sustainable learning long after individual programmes have been completed.
